The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is a political and military alliance, created to ensure and promote security and stability in the North Atlantic Area, but also committed also to the resolution of crisis beyond its borders and to the support of its partners worldwide. Due to this international scope, more than twenty years ago NATO created the Mediterranean Dialogue Initiative with the aim “to create good relation and better mutual understanding and confidence throughout the region, promoting regional security and stability and explaining NATO’s policies and goals”.

COAJE, the Youth Atlantic Treaty Association of Spain, strongly believes that it is time to call on new generations to give them the chance to be heard. It is within this framework that we consider Madrid, the capital of the Kingdom of Spain, the geopolitical and natural connection between our two seas and therefore, between the Euro-Atlantic region and the Mediterranean region, the ideal place to bring together students and young professionals, passionate about international security and defense, to debate about the role of NATO in the world, its capacities and its biggest challenges.

Our program aims to raise awareness on the major political and security issues that our world faces today, demonstrate the need to work together as one in the international world, and finally, be a vehicle for our young generation to get involved in finding solutions for building peace and stability.

Participants will learn the importance of the Alliance when it comes to global peace, security and stability. They will have the opportunity to attend academic conferences of experts on Mediterranean security issues, to visit military and civil institutions and facilities and to learn from military officers, diplomats and representatives of defense industry. Participants will work together on policy recommendations, which will be published on COAJE website and social media channels, to promote a youth perspective for advancing NATO’s strategic goals.

YMD 2018 is the Fifth Edition of this event, already consolidated and still unique in its kind. The event and specifically this V Edition is substantially relevant to COAJE members as the representation of five years of perseverant hard work and due to this importance, COAJE staff is strongly compromise to make this event a unique experience for every participant, sponsor and speaker. We continue strongly committed to conduct synergies amongst participants and, over all, to the sharing of opinions and knowledge between students, young professionals, academia, military and industry spheres.
The Mediterranean continues today being one of the most important geopolitical areas of the world. Military, civilian and peacekeeping missions, diverse crisis, instable economic and social basis, religion and identity. So many tendencies, dilemmas and initiatives sometimes it may appear as an overwhelming territory. Land of opportunities but also of risks, Mare Nostrum faces several and multipolar challenges, from migration to rebellion and claims for democracy, from piracy to unemployment or authoritarian regimes. But specially, terrorism has become the main challenge for the region, rooted in the issues just mentioned and on debates about identity and religion.

- Workshop 1. NATO and the EU’s Strategy in the South. Libya.
  - EU-NATO Relations, EU’s military autonomy?
  - EU’s strategy towards the South, Responsibility to protect: Libya.

NATO started its Mediterranean Dialogue in 1994 and since then it has maintained stable relations towards the region, especially with key allies such as Morocco or Tunisia. Meanwhile, the EU, specially guided by its southern countries, has reinforced cooperation with its front shore, especially with instruments such as the Union for the Mediterranean or its Neighbourhood Policy. Both associations are also joining hands and efforts. Mutual commitment was again reinforced at the European Council in December 2017. This first workshop will discuss common initiatives, new ways of reinforcing cooperation with Southern Mediterranean and will specially focus its attention on Libya’s reconstruction.

- Workshop 2. Towards Northern Africa and terrorism in MENA
  - Countering terrorism at home: indigenous terrorism. Freedom or security?
  - Boko Haram, Al Qaida, Islamic State. Differences and similarities. Facing a multipolar phenomena

Terrorism remains one of the foremost threats on a global scale; one that states will have to deal with both at the national and international sphere, via institutions like NATO. Radicalization and ‘lone wolf’ attacks remain the forefront challenges on the global counter-terrorist agenda. Said joint action has led to an intense debate regarding the balance between security and freedom, and the limitations of each dimension.
While terrorist groups share a plethora of common characteristics, they ultimately remain markedly distinct actors, which pursue specific territorial ambitions of their own. Mingling them all into a single entity would no doubt prove a grave mistake, as specific strategies need to address the very singularities inherent to each and every one of them. Only then will the world’s nations manage to effectively opposed the threat posed by the “jihadists”.

- Workshop 3. Even further, to the East: Afghanistan and Yemen
  - Afghanistan. Intervention and Prevention. NATO’s role
  - NATO’s growing concern about Yemen. The influence of Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Iran

Going further to the East, peace and security have also been a long-standing priority for NATO. The Alliance and its members have strengthen their values and improve their strategies towards the others, while promoting cooperation and open discussions. Is in this context where Intervention is replaced by prevention, crisis management, security sector reform measures and, as a whole, strengthening infrastructures, and institutions. And that is also what countries such as Afghanistan and Yemen appear to need. Yemeni conflict started more than 3 years ago and is still unresolved, with its population suffering from scarcity, war and violence, dysfunctional institutions and countries of the area using their influences to fight for the territory. This fourth workshop will therefore work on proposals for challenges as those mentioned.
